I DIDN'T KNOW THAT

Oranges were originally green. The first oranges imported to the West were green tangerine-pomelo hybrids from Southeast Asia.

Competitive art was once an Olympic sport. From 1912 to 1948, medals were awarded for painting, sculpture, architecture, literature, and music.

Shrimp hearts are located in their heads. Their internal anatomy is surprisingly compact and efficient.

There's a country with more pyramids than Egypt. Sudan has over 200 pyramids, more than any other nation.

Goldfish can lose their color in the dark. If kept in a dark room, a goldfish will eventually turn white.

A Microraptor is the smallest dinosaur ever discovered. It was only 16 inches long and had feathers. The letter "Q" doesn't appear in any U.S. state name. It's the only letter of the alphabet with that distinction.

Every day, 12 newborns are given to the wrong parents. Thankfully, most mix-ups are quickly corrected.

Cheetahs love Calvin Klein cologne. Wildlife researchers discovered that cheetahs are unusually attracted to the scent of Calvin Klein's "Obsession for Men".

WEIRD WONDERS

Salar De Uyuni, Bolivia

- the world's largest salt pan, a large, flat area stretching for miles. When a thin film of water gathers on the surface it is also the world's largest natural mirror.

Jellyfish Lake, Palau

- Jellyfish Lake is so named because, well, it contains jellyfish. Lots of them! This lake, one of the weirdest places across the world has recently been opened for the public.

Lake Natron, Tanzania

- Animals that die in this African lake are turned into statues, through calcification. The presence of huge volumes of sodium bicarbonate actually mummify birds and beasts alike. Even more unnerving, high alkaline content in the lake turns the water red. In spite of all these conditions, it is a sometime final, grazing ground for Flamingos.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

* On Nov. 18, 1996, exotic bird expert and protector Tony Silva was sentenced to seven years in prison for heading an illegal parrot-smuggling operation -- one of many people to be arrested during Operation Renegade, a three-year international investigation into bird smuggling by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Division of Law Enforcement.

* On Nov. 17, 1991, Fox aired the first condom ad on network TV during the teen sitcom "Herman's Head," inspired by increasing anxiety about the spread of AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases.

* On Nov. 19, 1969, Brazilian soccer star Pelé, considered one of the greatest players in his sport, scored his 1,000th professional goal in a game, against Vasco da Gama in Rio de Janeiro's Maracana stadium.

Fun Fact

George Smith, owner of a confectionary company called the Bradley Smith Company, took credit for inventing the modern version of the lollipop, which he began making in 1908. In 1931, he trademarked the term "lollipop," borrowing the name from a famous racehorse named Lolly Pop.

GOD WILL JUDGE US ON WHAT DID WE DO WITH WHAT WE KNEW AND WHAT WE HAVE BEEN GIVEN

* On Nov. 20, 1866, Pierre Lallement received a U.S. patent for the country's first pedal bicycle. Unfortunately, he wasn't able to capitalize on his invention. Failing to acquire enough funds to open a factory, he sold the rights to the patent in 1868 and died in obscurity in 1881.

* On Nov. 21, 1934, a teenage and terrified Ella Fitzgerald stepped on the stage at Harlem's Apollo Theater to participate in Amateur Night after her name was drawn from a hat. At the time an aspiring dancer, she spontaneously decided to sing instead, not only winning the competition after a rough start, but unknowingly setting her feet on the path to becoming a music legend.

* On Nov. 22, 1986, 20-year-old Mike Tyson knocked out 33-year-old Trevor Berbick in only five minutes and 35 seconds to become the youngest titleholder ever. He had won all 27 of the matches he'd previously fought, knocking out 26 of his opponents.

* On Nov. 23, 2002, John Herrington became the first Native American in space when he set out on a mission to the International Space Station. In honor of his heritage, he brought along several eagle feathers, a traditional wooden flute, a few arrowheads and the flag of the Chickasaw Nation.

From the moment we wake up to the time we go to bed, AI tools are working behind the scenes to help us stay organized, efficient, and informed.

One way AI improves daily life is by helping us make better decisions. Financial apps can analyze spending habits, track budgets, and send alerts when bills are due. Fitness trackers and smartwatches collect data on movement, sleep, and heart rate, then use AI to suggest healthier routines. Even cars are becoming decision-makers. Modern vehicles use AI for driver assistance — helping with lane changes, parking, and collision warnings. Navigation systems update routes in real time to avoid traffic jams or road hazards, saving both time and stress.

Healthcare is another area where AI is making a quiet revolution. From reading X-rays to reminding patients to take medication, AI helps doctors and individuals alike make smarter, faster choices about their well-being.

Another way AI helps us daily is through organization. Digital calendars can now predict the best times for meetings or alert you when it's time to leave based on real-time traffic. AI-powered note-taking apps can record your voice and instantly turn it into searchable text.

For families, AI-enabled devices can help manage busy schedules, track homework assignments, and even monitor home security cameras for safety. Parents can set filters that protect children online, while older adults can use voice assistants to set reminders for medication or appointments.

AI also helps us relax and enjoy life. Streaming platforms like Netflix, Spotify, and YouTube use algorithms that analyze what we watch or listen to, then recommend shows, songs, or podcasts that match our personal preferences. Instead of spending hours browsing, we can discover new favorites instantly.

Shopping sites like Amazon do something similar by suggesting products based on what we've viewed or purchased. While it can seem uncanny at times, this personalization is powered by AI — designed to save time and help you find exactly what you want.

AI is changing the way we live each day. By embracing it, we gain more than convenience; we gain time, insight, and freedom. When used wisely, AI doesn't distance us from the human experience — it enhances it. It helps us live smarter, work easier, and spend more moments doing what we truly love.

THANKSGIVING ART - Thanksgiving is a holiday steeped in Americana, and what captures that better than the classic cover illustrations of The Saturday Evening Post? Illustrator J.C. Leyendecker, who was born in Germany, studied art in Paris and opened an art studio with his brother in Chicago, created some of the magazine's most famous holiday covers, including the annual New Year Baby. A study for "Peeling Apples," his Thanksgiving-themed illustration for the cover of the Nov. 28, 1925, issue, sold for $13,200 at an auction by Bruneau & Co. Leyendecker's original art is quite valuable; in 2021, his painting for "Beat-up Boy, Football Hero," which graced the Nov. 21, 1914, The Saturday Evening Post cover, sold for a record $4.1 million. The "Peeling Apples" study is clearly unfinished, with visible grid lines and parts left without paint, but it still has appeal. The unfinished spots provide a glimpse of the work that goes into the illustration. Like a Thanksgiving meal, it looks like a labor of love.

Q: A few years ago, I was given a Westmoreland glass salesman sample notebook. The notebook is complete. I was wondering if you might know of someone who would be interested in purchasing this catalog. It is in mint condition.

A: The Westmoreland Glass Company of Grapeville, Pennsylvania, was active from 1890 to 1984 and made many kinds of collectible colored glass, including pressed glass, milk glass and carnival glass. Glass catalogs are helpful for identifying and dating vintage pieces. A glass collector or a collectors' club may be interested in your catalog. Try contacting a collectors' club like the National Westmoreland Glass Collectors Club (westmorelandglassclub.org), National Depression Glass Association (ndga.net), American Carnival Glass Association (myacga.com) or International Carnival Glass Association (internationalcarnivalglass.com). Sometimes auction houses that specialize in glass, like Woody Auction (woodyauction.com) or Jaremos Art Glass Specialists (jaremos.com), sell glass catalogs. Individual vintage catalogs can sell for about $20 to $75. If you cannot find a buyer, you may be able to donate your catalog to a glass museum like the Corning Museum of Glass (cmog.org) or the Ohio Glass Museum (ohioglassmuseum.org).

TIP: Use your silver often and wash it to keep it clean. Polish it as seldom as possible. Silver polish removes a small bit of silver each time it is used.

VETERANS ★ POST ★

by Freddy Groves

THE SHUTDOWN

At this writing, several weeks into the government shutdown, the VA has not been immune to the effects of it. We don't know how long it will go on, but the VA is doing all it can for veterans. While you won't be able to access all of their services as long as the shutdown continues, you're not being left in the lurch.

You'll still get your education, housing and pension benefits. The medical clinics, hospitals and Vet Centers remain open. Burials continue, as do the processing of applications for burial benefits, markers and headstones. (Call them at 800-535-1117 for scheduling.) Appeals continue on your case. The main phone number is still manned (800-827-1000), and so is the crisis line (988, Press 1). Support for caregivers, suicide prevention and homeless services continues. Which is great. But that's only part of the situation. There are many things you can't do or get right now, or that aren't being handled.

Regional benefits offices are closed. There is no placement of permanent headstones at the cemeteries, nor grounds maintenance. Pre-need burial applications aren't being processed. There is no career counseling right now. Call centers for the GI Bill are closed. The VA Central Office isn't reaching out to state, county, tribal, municipal, faith-based and community-based partners.

By the time you read this, the shutdown might well be over. We can only hope. But even if it is, from the moment things open up, it will likely take time for all the parts and pieces to gear up again.

Meanwhile, if you're a member of a veterans service group such as the American Legion or Veterans of Foreign Wars, you can help. Check in and see what they're doing. Perhaps there's a way for you to pitch in locally. Keep in mind that the holidays are nearly upon us. There are veterans with families to support and veterans in hospitals that might not get a visitor.

Hang in there, and step up where you can.
