I DIDN'T KNOW THAT

Oranges were originally green. The first oranges imported to the West were green tangerine-pomelo hybrids from Southeast Asia.

Competitive art was once an Olympic sport. From 1912 to 1948, medals were awarded for painting, sculpture, architecture, literature, and music.

Shrimp hearts are located in their heads. Their internal anatomy is surprisingly compact and efficient.

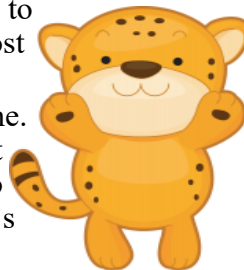

There's a country with more pyramids than Egypt. Sudan has over 200 pyramids, more than any other nation.

Goldfish can lose their color in the dark. If kept in a dark room, a goldfish will eventually turn white.

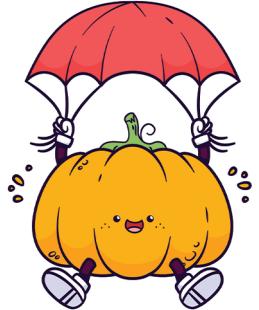

A Microraptor is the smallest dinosaur ever discovered. It was only 16 inches long and had feathers. The letter "Q" doesn't appear in any U.S. state name. It's the only letter of the alphabet with that distinction.

Every day, 12 newborns are given to the wrong parents. Thankfully, most mix-ups are quickly corrected.

Cheetahs love Calvin Klein cologne. Wildlife researchers discovered that cheetahs are unusually attracted to the scent of Calvin Klein's "Obsession for Men".

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

* On Nov. 18, 1996, exotic bird expert and protector Tony Silva was sentenced to seven years in prison for heading an illegal parrot-smuggling operation -- one of many people to be arrested during Operation Renegade, a three-year international investigation into bird smuggling by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Division of Law Enforcement.

* On Nov. 17, 1991, Fox aired the first condom ad on network TV during the teen sitcom "Herman's Head," inspired by increasing anxiety about the spread of AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases.

* On Nov. 19, 1969, Brazilian soccer star Pelé, considered one of the greatest players in his sport, scored his 1,000th professional goal in a game, against Vasco da Gama in Rio de Janeiro's Maracana stadium.

GOD WILL JUDGE US ON WHAT DID WE DO WITH WHAT WE KNEW AND WHAT WE HAVE BEEN GIVEN

* On Nov. 20, 1866, Pierre Lallement received a U.S. patent for the country's first pedal bicycle. Unfortunately, he wasn't able to capitalize on his invention. Failing to acquire enough funds to open a factory, he sold the rights to the patent in 1868 and died in obscurity in 1881.

* On Nov. 21, 1934, a teenage and terrified Ella Fitzgerald stepped on the stage at Harlem's Apollo Theater to participate in Amateur Night after her name was drawn from a hat. At the time an aspiring dancer, she spontaneously decided to sing instead, not only winning the competition after a rough start, but unknowingly setting her feet on the path to becoming a music legend.

* On Nov. 22, 1986, 20-year-old Mike Tyson knocked out 33-year-old Trevor Berbick in only five minutes and 35 seconds to become the youngest titleholder ever. He had won all 27 of the matches he'd previously fought, knocking out 26 of his opponents.

* On Nov. 23, 2002, John Herrington became the first Native American in space when he set out on a mission to the International Space Station. In honor of his heritage, he brought along several eagle feathers, a traditional wooden flute, a few arrowheads and the flag of the Chickasaw Nation.

From the moment we wake up to the time we go to bed, AI tools are working behind the scenes to help us stay organized, efficient, and informed.

One way AI improves daily life is by helping us make better decisions. Financial apps can analyze spending habits, track budgets, and send alerts when bills are due. Fitness trackers and smartwatches collect data on movement, sleep, and heart rate, then use AI to suggest healthier routines. Even cars are becoming decision-makers. Modern vehicles use AI for driver assistance — helping with lane changes, parking, and collision warnings. Navigation systems update routes in real time to avoid traffic jams or road hazards, saving both time and stress.

Healthcare is another area where AI is making a quiet revolution. From reading X-rays to reminding patients to take medication, AI helps doctors and individuals alike make smarter, faster choices about their well-being.

Make Money On Purpose

"AI to Make Life Easier" with Mike Lamb

Another way AI helps us daily is through organization. Digital calendars can now predict the best times for meetings or alert you when it's time to leave based on real-time traffic. AI-powered note-taking apps can record your voice and instantly turn it into searchable text.

For families, AI-enabled devices can help manage busy schedules, track homework assignments, and even monitor home security cameras for safety. Parents can set filters that protect children online, while older adults can use voice assistants to set reminders for medication or appointments.

AI also helps us relax and enjoy life. Streaming platforms like Netflix, Spotify, and YouTube use algorithms that analyze what we watch or listen to, then recommend shows, songs, or podcasts that match our personal preferences. Instead of spending hours browsing, we can discover new favorites instantly.

Shopping sites like Amazon do something similar by suggesting products based on what we've viewed or purchased. While it can seem uncanny at times, this personalization is powered by AI — designed to save time and help you find exactly what you want.

AI is changing the way we live each day. By embracing it, we gain more than convenience; we gain time, insight, and freedom. When used wisely, AI doesn't distance us from the human experience — it enhances it. It helps us live smarter, work easier, and spend more moments doing what we truly love.

* Mummies can still have fingerprints.

* President Herbert Hoover spoke Mandarin Chinese with his wife, Lou Henry Hoover, to avoid eavesdroppers during their stint in the White House.

* The Appalachian Mountains are older than the Atlantic Ocean.

* Contrary to what some folks might claim, a study found that cats display the main attachment styles as babies and dogs.

* McDonald's buys about 2 billion eggs every year just for their U.S. restaurants.

* The concept of contact lenses dates back to Leonardo da Vinci, who described a vision correction method involving a water-filled glass hemisphere over the eye. Centuries later, British polymath Thomas Young created a lens prototype made of glass and filled with water based on another theoretical idea, by philosopher/scientist Rene Descartes.

* Israel used piracy laws as the basis for prosecuting Nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann.

* Lucille Fay LeSueur got her stage name, Joan Crawford, from a contest run in the fan magazine Movie Weekly.

* Bat species make up 21% of all mammals.

* Our physical and emotional states can change how we see color. Fatigue may dull sensitivity to contrast, some medications can alter the way the retina processes light, and positive thinkers often view hues as slightly more vivid.
